FACULTY NAMED

Class Work Will Start All Grades Next Monday

The Canyon public schools will open September 3, for the 1934-35 session. Enrollment will begin Friday afternoon at 1 p. m. and continue Saturday morning, until 12 noon. The students of the high school will report for their books and other instructions Friday afternoon and Saturday morning while the pupils of the Elementary school will report for enrollment Saturday morning.

The school busses will run Saturday morning. It will not be necessary for pupils living on bus lines to enroll before this time.

Parents are requested to confer with their children and with the principals and teachers regarding the programs and subjects that tthe children are to take. If this is done in time, all concerned will profit from it.

According to early reports, a large enrollment is expected. Many families are moving into Canyon in order to send their children to the schools of the town. An unusually large number of inquiries have been received about the schools to date.

The high school is adding a department of commerce to its curriculum for the first time in an effort to offer as many practical courses as possible. Some of the older and more abstract courses are being dropped from the program. Typing will be offered the first semester, while shorthand and bookkeeping will be added later in the school year. Commercial art and music appreciation are other new courses that will be given during the present session of school.

The Canyon school is fortunate in having had the majority of its faculty attend summer schools at various places during the past

One-fifth of an inch of moisture fell in Canyon this week, with .08 of an inch Monday, and .12 of an inch this morning.

Following the rains of last week the temperature moderated very greatly, and cool, cloudy weather prevailed until Sunday.

All parts of the county received good rains during the past ten days, although the southeast section has not received as much as the balance of the county. J. J. Bauer states that only a quarter of an inch fell at his place, and on east.

FEWER VOTES ARE CAST IN 2nd PRIMARY

Woodul, Smith, McCraw, Sharp for State Offices

HOLT IS CHOSEN

Allred Leads Hunter In Saturday's Ballot 44,346

Practically 250, or 10% less votes, were cast in Saturday's primary in Randall county than were cast in the first primary in July. The percentage or decline in numbers was greater in Randall county than it was over the state, owing perhaps to the fact that only one county race was at stake.

A. B. Holt was elected County and District Clerk over Felix Neff with a lead of 130 votes.

District Judge Henry S. Bishop carried Randall county by a smaller margin than in the past, and was defeated in the district by 533 votes.

James V. Allred was elected Governor.

Walter Woodul was elected Lieu-

Transient Labor Will Be Used at Palisades Park

CCC men from the Palo Duro State Park will soon be relieved from work at tthe Palisades, and will be used exclusively at the Palo Duro. A transient relief camp has been authorized for the Palisades, and work will be started on barracks.

About half of Company 1821 has been used at the Palisades, which has greatly handicapped work at the Palo Duro.

Well Equipment Bought For No. 4 At The Park Site

The government has bought pumping equipment for well No. 4 at the Palo Duro Park, and will equip this well as an auxiliary. While 800 men were at the Park, water often ran low with only No. 1 and No. 2 wells being equipped.

Since then No. 3 well was sunk on the park property, which produces about 3 gallons per minute. This well is not being used at the present time, but the National Park Service proposes sinking additional wells near No. 3 in order to secure the major portion of the water supply on the park site.

No. 4 is a 6-gallon well on the Finch place, but will be used only in case either No. 1 or No. 2 breaks down. When more companies are added this fall, No. 4 will likely be added to the regular service for water supply.

Judge Ely States Topping Goodnight Trail To Be Done

Judge W. R. Ely, member of the State Highway Commission, stopped in Canyon yesterday on his way home to Abilene.

Judge Ely confirmed the statement he made in Austin three weeks ago to Judge S. B. Orton, G. B. Heath, W. E. Bennett, and Clyde Warwick, that the Goodnight Trail would be topped as soon as the money was available.

Judge Ely is highly interested in the State Park system of Texas and looks upon the Palo Duro State Park as one of the most important in Texas. He was unable to say whether or not the topping could be done this fall, or would have to wait until spring. All depends upon the money available for the Commission.

30 Men Respond To Eagle Training Camp Monday

Coach Cleveland Jones is highly pleased with the response of his call for opening of the Eagles training camp Monday. Thirty men responded the first day, and a half dozen more are expected to be in training before the end of the week.

"The boys are working hard this week to get in shape for the first game with Dumas on the 22nd," stated Coach Jones this morning.

Daily training will continue for the Eagles candidates until the opening of school next Monday. Other men are likely to report after school gets under way.

Mrs. Frank Watson of Texico was here Monday looking for a house to rent. The family left here in 1915, after having lived in Canyon for a number of years.

Summer Session of W. T. Ended Thursday; 110 Graduates

The largest class in the history of the West Texas State Teachers College terminated its undergraduate experience in the summer commencement program Thursday with Dr. J. M. Gordon of the Texas Technological College addressing the 110 members of the class.

Practically every member of the summer graduating class will go into a regular position within the next three weeks. The class is composed largely of experienced teachers, the range being from no experience at all to 20 years. The roster of the class shows the members to be from all parts of Texas, from New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Kansas.

With the close of the summer session of the college will undergo repairs and renovations, preparing for the opening of the 25th session on September 18.

The brief vacation will be spent by the faculty in other parts of Texas and neighboring states. President J. A. Hill and part of the administrative staff will be here throughout the vacation and offices will be open for the convenience of patrons.

Schools Opening Brings Need of New Recipes

School lunches, and problems of proper food for school children are again confronting the mothers of Randall county with the opening of school next Monday.

Hundreds of Randall county women have contributed their best recipes to the Favorite Recipe Cook Book, published by The Canyon News.

Every woman in Randall county should have one of these Cook Books, only 25 cents; 28 cents by mail.

Orton and Heath Attend Panhandle Gathering Tuesday

Forming a Panhandle organization for the purpose of carrying to Washington the plea for aid for this section was undertaken Tuesday when citizens from all Panhandle counties gathered again in Amarillo to discuss the present situation. This is the latest of several meetings held for this purpose, but at no other time has a definite plan of organization been made.

Judge S. B. Orton and Commissioner G. B. Heath represented Randall county. Judge Orton served on the organization committee which proposed the formation of an executive committee with one representative from each county. John E. Hill of Amarillo was named president of the new committee; Sam M. Braswell of Clarendon, treasurer; Carl Hinton of Amarillo, secretary.

Judge Orton will call upon local citizens to name Randall county's representative on this committee.

Charges were made that the Panhandle relief was being blocked in Washington, and that only a trip to the President would overcome this situation.

At a banquet held at night, President J. A. Hill was one of the speakers. Judge W. R. Ely of the Highway Commission stated that the gaps in Panhandle highways would be closed before the opening of the Texas Centennial in 1936.

New Postmaster

Guy Harp will become acting postmaster of Canyon on September 1st. He was recently named by Congressman Marvin Jones from the list submitted by the Civil Service Department.

Retiring Postmaster

OSCAR HUNT

Oscar Hunt will retire as postmaster of Canyon, August 31st. He has been appointed to this office during all Republican administrations since 1907 and has served under five Republican and two Democratic Presidents.

Relief Work Shut Down Again With Depletion of Funds

All relief work in Randall county was again shut down yesterday when funds were exhausted. Work was stopped on the Goodnight Trail, and no money was available to buy groceries for those who were out.

County Administrator H. S. Strain has requested more funds, but has been advised that the State Relief Commission is out of funds for the present.

A special session of the legislature started Monday for the purpose of providing more relief funds.

District Court Term Will Hold Through Week

Judge Henry S. Bishop was down Saturday and held court throughout the morning, disposing of a few cases. He will return before the end of the week to try several cases which are on the docket.

A divorce was granted the plaintiff in the case of Dorothy Jicha Sutton vs. George Sutton.

Mrs. Verna Amiott Moore was granted a divorce from Joe V. Moore.

In the case of O. N. Gamble, et al vs. J. I. Foster, judgment was rendered the plaintiff.

An agreed judgment of $6,000 damages was granted in the case Pauline Lady, et al, vs. Panhandle Refining Co. The damages were set aside in favor of the plaintiff's children, Christine Fincher and Edna Fincher.

OSCAR HUNT TO RELEASE LOCAL OFFICE

Harp Chosen Over Field of Thirteen Local Applicants

ACTING POSTMASTER

Hunt Has Served Under Seven Presidents in Office

Guy Harp will become postmaster of Canyon on Saturday, September 1st.

He was named as acting postmaster by Congressman Marvin Jones two weeks ago, and his appointment from the postoffice department arrived Sunday morning. He has made bond, but will wait until the first of the month to take over the duties of the office.

Mr. Harp was highest in the examinations conducted by the Civil Service Commission when thirteen applicants filed for the local office. He served overseas during the war, and was Post Commander of the local Legion Post during the past year. He has been a traveling salesman since the war.

Oscar Hunt retires from the office after having served during every Republican administration since 1907. He has served longer as postmaster than any man in this section of Texas. His term expired in March, but he was advised to continue in office until the Civil Service Commission could act upon the papers filed by the applicants. Reports were not made by this commission to Congressman Marvin Jones until after Congress had adjourned.

Mr. Hunt has held six commissions under five Republican Presidents, and his term extended into the terms of two Democratic Presidents. His first appointment came Oct. 24, 1907, by President Theodore Roosevelt, with reappointment by Roosevelt on January 9, 1908. He was appointed by President William Howard Taft on Aug. 23, 1912, and was the only postmaster in Texas confirmed by the Senate near the end of Taft's administration. His appointment by President Warren G. Harding came on March 23, 1922; by President Calvin Coolidge on April 20, 1926; by President Herbert Hoover on April 18, 1930. His term extended into the administrations of President Woodrow Wilson and President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Congressman Jones came to Canyon to interview the three can-

PANHANDLE MEMBER 1933 PRESS ASSOCIATION

School opens Monday. The familiar sound of the old school bell will be missed since the day of school bells has largely passed, but nevertheless, the day is most important in every community. The last few years has largely debunked the old monetary plea to the boys that they could increase their earning capacity by attending high school. Today they see many degree graduates who are having no better luck then themselves in getting jobs. But the cultural value of education still remains, as it always should have been, as the real plea for boys to continue high school. The fact that any sort of a job is scarce today should be the impelling force behind every argument to keep the boys in high school, since those with a better education may fare better down the line when the aches and pains of the depression and drouth are forgotten. Going to school is better than loafing; the boy may accidentally aborb something good in a studious environment. It's a cinch that he will absorb something bad if allowed to roam the streets in the atmosphere of idleness where petty schemes if mischief are hatched up to create something to do, with the inevitable of something greater in the way of transgression and crime farther down the line. Every boy should be in school next week. Most of the girls will go of their own free will. Perhaps of these same girls will refuse to chase around with the boys who refuse to go to school, this might be some incentive for a lot more boys to enter high school.

Charles E. Strain believes that it is better to have a boy tooting a horn than for the boy to be thinking about or practicing cracking a safe. It is better for the girl to be at home attempting to pick out the notes on some band instrument than to be chasing around the streets with the boy who has no interest in life except the cussedness he can get into. Being a bandmaster, you would expect Mr. Strain to look toward the boys and girls of the town and community as future material for the Buffalo Band, which is making remarkable developments. Every boy and girl in Canyon who wants to toot a horn in the Canyon hign school band should be provided an instrument, if he shows an inclination to stay at the job. Members of his family and perhaps some of the neighbors may become frantic while this process of tooting goes on; but isn't it better to put up with a little inconvenience now than to be embarrassed by some antics of an idle boy or girl who may succeed in getting into a lot of cussedness? The plea is that instruments should be provided the boys and girls in the Canyon schools, and that the band be encouraged. It was a noble group which played last year in the Canyon high school band at the Eagle football games. Very few words of encouragement ever reached their ears as they did their part in helping the Eagles win. Canyon as a community has never contributed much toward a band; the Buffalo Band has been a free institution for local enterprises; the high school band has been largely voluntary. While we are planning for the future, band music should be a major issue in the community, starting in the high school, and continuing through the College. A lot of college students who need places to stay in order to play in the Buffalo Band will be with us soon. They are entitled to due consideration among the citizens of Canyon. Good band music is a real investment for any community.

The political obituary of Jim Ferguson has been written many times during the past turbulant twenty years in which the old fox has held sway in Texas. This time it looks like "FINIS" could safely be stamped upon Jim and his clutch on Texas. Not a single Fergusonite won a state-wide office in the two primary elections. Walter Woodul was the only candidate that Jim Ferguson even mentioned who won in the second primary, and Woodul was not in the original list, and did not solicit Jim's support. Jim is too old to stage a comeback. The people of Texas broke all precedents in electing Jim and his wife to four terms as Governor; they would hardly give Mrs. Ferguson a third term even if Jim had the driving power of the olden days. It is clearly demonstrated that Jim cannot transfer his mantel upon other shoulders. C. C. McDonald, one of his most ardent supporters went down in defeat. John Pundt, a close ally, bit the dust. Tom Hunter may well contribute his defeat to his open courting for Jim's favor and following. Jim fought Judge John Sharp, and Sharp won. The Ferguson defeat was thorough and complete this year. However, the voters need not think that Jim Ferguson will not continue to exert considerable power in the shaping of political affairs in Texas. He still has many friends who will continue to rely upon his judgment of men and measures. Jim Ferguson will continue to be interested in Texas politics longer after the average voter has lost his interest in Jim as a politician.

Such wonderful rains. There has certainly been a wonderful change in the Panhandle since the rains came. Until ten days ago, it looked like there would not be a mouthful of feed raised in Northwest Texas. The row crop was curled up and dying; the grass was brown and dead; the trees were turning yellow. The rains came, and spirits were revived. A lot of the row crop will make feed or roughness to feed the stock. The ranges are greening up, and will make grass if the showers continue. The farmers are planning for a large wheat acreage, which will furnish winter pasture for their stock even if it does not make grain next year. There is not a section of the United States which will recover as quickly as the Panhandle of Texas if given half a chance. While there is no "money crop" in sight, even enough feed to keep the stock on the ranches and farms improves the morale of the people. It is certain that the federal government will not allow any citizen to suffer from hunger during the coming winter. And most of us have learned pretty well during the past four years how to get along with little or no money. Great is the Panhandle of Texas.

The election is over, and we can now forget all the mean things which have been said about the various candidates, and try to remember only the good that they have done, and the good which they have promised to do. Politics will be adjourned for at least 18 months, and then we shall start tearing into a new group who offer themselves for public office. It is a good thing that all of the unnecessary attacks upon candidates are forgotten as soon as the fever of the campaign subsides. Those who are elected will strive to serve their very best. If they do less, chances are they will be discredited at the next election. The disturbing thing about elections is the terrible amount of mud-slinging which has become the rule in recent years. The people seem to like it, judging from the way in which they respond to the candidates who are most capable in that line. At any rate, the American election is better than the revolts and revolutions of other nations where the people are not given a free hand in the selection of their public officials. Bad as the primary may seem, there are many other forms of government which are much worse.

Disregard for law is the worst evil in America today. Perhaps we have too many laws. "Thou shalt not" is a pretty poor method of governing a free thinking people. It immediately challenges a large percent of the people to go out and break the law, just to see whether society really means what it says. During the recent political campaign in Texas we have had exposed many existing evils in Texas, wide open gambling joints, saloons, and other evils regarding which the people seem fully informed, but are not willing to exert themselves to the extent of correcting the evil. Grand juries will not indict criminals; trial juries will not convict; public sentiment turns to the criminal rather than to the officers who are trying to do their duty. It is time for awakening as to this disregard for law, and the open lawlessness which exists in the nation.

Another victory for law and order comes in the capture of Perchmouth Stanton. This time the woman sheriff of Swisher county took personal charge of the man who slew her husband, and kept the criminal in the jail at Tulia, rather than trust him to a modern jail from which it was supposed to be impossible to escape. Time was when it was considered the death cells in the penitentiary were safe confines for prisoners until the recent escape of Hamilton and his two pals. Some of these days the 98% law abiding citizens will reach the decision that in order to protect themselves, they must treat the 2% criminals in the same ruthless manner as the criminals are treating the 98% of our citizens.

The victory of James V. Allred was counter to any method which might be used in figuring the outcome of the second primary. The breakdown caused by the Ferguson support, and the failure of the Fergusonites to follow their leader was responsible for Hunter's defeat. The prejudice of a so-called rich man against a so-called poor man swayed thousands of voters. Politics will always continue to be a very, very funny game. The more you play with it the less you know about it.

Hasn't it been a relief to have cool nights? Almost for the first time in history, Panhandle people have suffered hot night continually through July and August. The hot days and hot nights of this summer were sapping the spirit of the people.

One trouble with this world is that modern houses are too small to live in and modern salaries are too small to live on.

U. S. Battles Drouth, Which Threatens To Make Desert of Midwest

TO keep the midwestern farm empire from becoming a great desert, fulfilling predictions made for years by federal scientists, steps are being taken throughout the nation to combat disastrous drouths, and to revive the old-time fertility of the region.

The 1934 drouth has cast a pall over the midwestern farm zone. On scores of farms, bones of cattle which died from starvation and thirst lie bleaching in the blazing sun. Stockyards are crammed with scrawny steers bought hastily by the government, for quick conversion into canned beef, to aid stricken farmers.

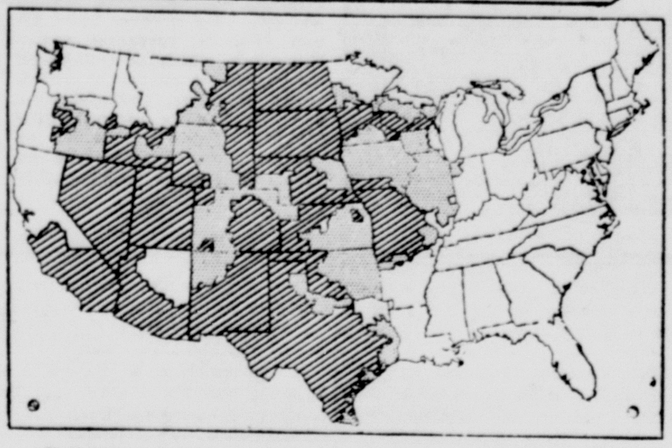
Melancholy farmers gaze at barren acres or scrubby growths of grain, thinking wistfully of the waving green and gold fields of other years.

Situation Desperate

For a long time, government scientists have warned that the west was gradually losing its fertility. Lands denuded through the years by wholesale deforestation have been robbed by rains and winds of their rich topsoil.

Conditions have become so desperate that the government may eventually face the necessity of moving, to other regions, 4,000,000 inhabitants of the territory between the Mississippi and the Rocky Mountains.

To supply thirsty farms and farmers, water is being shipped everywhere by tank car, and myriads of pipe lines are being laid throughout the west. Hundreds of wells, open to the needy, are being sunk; and in states where the water level has fallen so low that flow through normal outlets has ceased, the outlets themselves are being lowered.



Even after it had brought slow death to these cattle, the blazing sun, over parched midwestern farm lands, continued to beat down upon their carcasses. Drouth-affected regions are indicated on the map below, the more severely stricken regions being shaded heavily.

Attack Drouth Causes

These emergency measures are being supplemented by more permanent ones, which aim at basic drouth causes. Planting, terracing, ditch-filling, and other projects designed to halt soil erosion, are going on.

President Roosevelt has stamped approval on the 100-mile-wide "forest belt" which will stretch 1300 miles from Canada to Texas. By breaking winds and conserving moisture, this strip of trees, it is believed, will shield midwestern farms from the erosion- and crop-destroying effects of future drouths.

And now, to help along the "shelter belt" program, the American Tree Association is advocating the planting of town forests in every community in the "belt" region. Communities, farmers, and land owners in general are urged to join in a mighty tree-planting campaign.

Forests, the ATA points out, are a barrier against drouth distress, a haven for human beings and wild life alike, and a strong factor in land conservation.

If wide co-operation is obtained in planting "town forests," the ATA contends, tremendous added natural resources will be created.

And so they hope to spread nation-wide the slogan, "Have you a little forest in your town?"

M. L. McGehee and party of eight came in Tuesday from their fishing trip in New Mexico.

Notwithstanding the hot summer some fine fruit has been produced on the Plains. W .R. Franklin and W. J. Sluder have had fine peaches and plums. Drouth caused many peaches to go to the bad. Apples are still falling.

Melton McGehee and Miss Lemley with Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Horne and Cary Wayne, left Sunday for an outing in New Mexico, expect their return Thursday.

Mr. Best, our new sheriff from Claude, with Henry Lynch, same place, paid Wayside a visit Monday, on business. The latter has served Armstrong county as sheriff twelve years, some years ago.

I desire to thank the people of the 47th Judicial District for electing me to the office of District Judge. While I did not get a majority of the votes in Randall County, I appreciate the splendid vote that I did receive. I am fully aware of the task that lies before me. Without the assistance of the good citizens of a community no public officer can succeed. I solicit the same co-operation that you have given to the present District Judge, and I am confident that I shall have it. Out of gratitude for my election and in return for your co-operation I pledge you the best service of which I am capable.

Very gratefully yours,

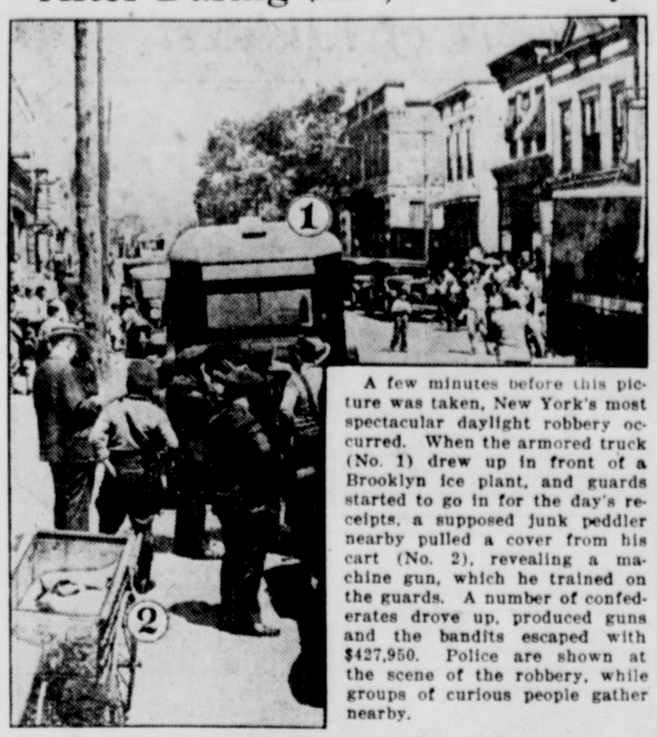
After Daring $427,950 Robbery



A few minutes before this picture was taken, New York's most spectacular daylight robbery occurred. When the armored truck (No. 1) drew up in front of a Brooklyn ice plant, and guards started to go in for the day's receipts, a supposed junk peddler nearby pulled a cover from his cart (No. 2), revealing a machine gun, which he trained on the guards. A number of confederates drove up, produced guns and the bandits escaped with $427,950. Police are shown at the scene of the robbery, while groups of curious people gather nearby.

1487 Accidents By Trucks on Hiways Reported in 1933

That there was a very material increase in the number of persons losing their lives in accidents involving motor trucks on Texas highways in 1933 is shown in a comprehensive report in booklet form just released by the Railway and Express Employes Association of Texas. This report, officers of the Association said, was prepared from articles on highway accidents appearing in all Texas newspapers during 1933.

A total of 1487 accidents involving motor trucks are listed in the report, this being an increase of 770 over 1932. The number of persons killed is shown as 362 as against 241 for the previous year, an increase of 121 fatalities. The 1933 report shows 1872 persons injured, an increase of 1085 over 1932.

Inadequate braking power or failure to apply brakes in time was responsible for the greater number of accidents listed due to six causes, the report states. Other causes shown, as revealed in the newspaper accounts from which the record was prepared, include faulty steering gear, parking at night without lights on highways, hogging the road, driver falling asleep at wheel due to exhaustion from long hours in service, and whipping of trailers. The report also shows that a large number of accidents were caused by trucks obscuring the view of automobile drivers, causing them to crash head-on with other cars in attempting to pass the heavier vehicles on narrow highways.

Houston led all other points in Texas in the number of accidents happening in 1933 with a total of 69. Dallas was second with 63, Ft. Worth third with 54, and San Antonio fourth with 49.

REDUCED RAILROAD FARES EXTENDED TO SEPT. 1935

The railroads have extended until Sept. 30, 1935, the present low passenger fares, based on three cents per mile for first class tickets, and two cents per mile for coach travel, according to announcement made by T. B. Gallaher, General Passenger Agent, Santa Fe Lines, Amarillo.

Round trip first class tickets cost two cents per mile traveled when the limit is ten days, or two and one half cents per mile traveled when the limit is six months. The round trip coach tickets with limit of ten days in addition to date of sale, cost but one and eight tenths cents per mile, a most remarkable fare for individual travel. These rates are not applicable to points in territory east of Chicago and St. Louis, however, through passengers are given benefit of the low fares up to these points.

Convention travel, is accorded, when reduced fares are arranged for specific meetings, rates based on one and one-third of the first class fare, which nets two cents per mile traveled in western or southeastern territory, but slightly higher to points east of Chicago and St. Louis.

Milk Prices Will be Increased in City Effective Sept. 1

A meeting of the Grade A Dairymen of Canyon was held Monday afternoon for discussion of the present local dairy problems, and the following price schedule, effective September 1st, was worked out.

Retail Price

Milk: Irregular or special deliveries, qt. 13c. Regular daily deliveries, qt. 12c; pt. 7c; ½ pt. 5c.

Heavy cream: qt. 50c; pt. 25c, ½ pt. 15c.

Wholesale Price

Milk: qt. 11c; pt. 6c; ½ pt. 3c.

Double cream: 32-34% butterfat, per qt. 45c; pt. 22½c; ½ pt. 12½c.

Representatives of the Retail Dairymen say they are facing a feed situation that has not existed for many years, which makes the present price advance absolutely necessary if they are to continue in the dairy business.

They also state that it is their purpose to keep in mind at all times the best interest of the general public and that they will exhaust every effort, not inconsistent with quality, to hold down the production cost, and prevent further price advance during the coming winter if possible.

Drouth Brings Him Lots (of Fun)

It's a dry, hot wind that blows somebody good. In this case, it's a humorous resident of Little Rock, Ark., who got a little fun out of erecting this bogus sign on the dry river bed of the Arkansas River. The drouth has brought the mighty Arkansas to its lowest point in history.

She Doesn't Know How You Do It!

YOU feel a little embarrassed and sorry for her. She looks so admiring and helpless, so envious, and so—so—ineffective!

Her clothes are always so bad, poor little thing. And she pays too much for them. Her home is furnished with all the wrong things. She seems to have a genius for wasting money. When she goes out to buy anything, soap or silverware, or lingerie or lamps, she's sure to turn up with something nobody ever heard of before and doesn't want to hear of again.

She is that eager, but not very bright, little woman who, "my dear, doesn't ever read advertisements." Who doesn't know what to buy, or where to find it, or what to pay for it. Who doesn't know values and can't compare them. Who doesn't know that when a new style, or a new convenience, or a new anything arrives, one sees it first in the advertisements.

One really gets a little vexed with her—

But let's not waste too much time on her. It's about time for you, dear lady, to have your look through the advertisements.

Steel Diving Bell Opens Door to New, Fantastic Undersea World

For the first time, human eyes have observed the weird, illuminated fish which inhabit the murky undersea world. Existence of such fauna was revealed by Dr. William Beebe, inset, after his recent record dives into ocean depths via the bathysphere.

IN its deepest parts, the ocean must contain wonders that would startle the most sophisticated scientist. Though Dr. William Beebe, in his recent dive, reached a depth never before attained by man, he has but "scratched the surface" of deep-sea exploration. And yet his revelations of life a half mile down are amazing. Here are some of them:

Rat-tailed fish, which flash on and off a number of bright greenish lights glowing like portholes along their sides. Others with eyes that dangle on long, flexible stalks many inches from their heads. A tiny, ordinary-looking fish which has an extraordinary appetite and, by means of an elastic mouth, can swallow another several times as big. After the banquet, the victim can be seen plainly in the transparent tummy of the little gourmand.

Three rows of sabre teeth, a huge mouth, a head more than half the size of its body and a fiery torch which glows at the end of a wand projecting from its head, lend a fierce, fantastic aspect to another denizen of the undersea world. Still another of these weird creatures tows an illuminated tail 10 times longer than itself.

SUCH eerie folk as these thrive in the murky region 3000 or so feet down, the greatest depth yet attained by man. Imagine, then, the wonders that must lie hidden in the real ocean deeps. The greatest depth in the Atlantic, for instance, is 27,972 feet; the deepest sea-bottom anywhere lies 25,400 feet under the surface off Mindanao Island in the Philippines.

The device that has made it possible for Dr. Beebe and his companion, Otis Barton, to set new diving records and to invade new submarine worlds, is called the "bathysphere" (from the Greek word bathy, meaning "deep"). Resembling the gondola used in stratosphere flights, the bathysphere is a steel ball, six feet in diameter. Its walls are only an inch and a half thick, yet they are sturdy enough to withstand the pressure of one-half ton to the square inch which water exerts at a half-mile depth. Three small windows, of three-inch-thick fused quartz, through which a beam of light flows to illuminate the area about the bathysphere, also are built to resist the enormous pressure.

IF something gave way at that half-mile depth, the scientists would have no time to drown; the first few drops of water would shoot through flesh and bone like steel bullets.

Seated in their diving bell (there's not room enough to stand), breathing manufactured air, and with electric lights and telephone communication at hand, Dr. Beebe and his companion have made several descents, each time going deeper.

As to the possibility of pushing farther into ocean depths, Dr. Beebe is noncommittal.

"Next to going to Mars," he has written, "there seems nothing more exciting and unpredictable."

News in Canyon 25 Years Ago

The annual re-union was considered a very great success. Cone Johnson was the principal speaker the first day. The largest crowd ever to assemble in the Panhandle greeted Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey on the last day. J. C. Hunt, of Canyon, Capt. J. T. Bobbitt, Miss Columbia Redfearn, Rev. J. C. Corkey of Winterset, Iowa, Congressman John H. Stephens, and William Poindexter were other speakers during the reunion. The rodeo and county fair attracted much attention. A large gathering of Confederate Veterans was greatly enjoyed by those representatives from every town on the Plains.

The post office was opened at Ralph, and train schedules arranged to stop at this station.

C. R. Burrow while on a visit to Colorado, walked to the top of Pike's Peak just to show up Oscar Hunt and R. A. Terrill who had been bragging about walking from Canyon to Amarillo.

The following program was sponsored by the Daughters of the Confederacy the last night of the reunion, as planned by Mrs. John Knight, Mrs. John Rusk, Mrs. I. C. Jenkins, Mrs. W. D. Scott and Mrs. S. S. Coffee:

Thanks to Voters
I am very grateful to the voters of Randall County for the splendid support they gave me as a candidate for County and District Clerk.
I was unfortunate in not receiving the necessary number of votes for election. Nevertheless, I am most grateful to those who supported me, and have only a feeling of kindness toward those who did not support me. I am especially grateful to those business men, farmers and dairymen who bought and paid for advertising for my campaign.
My opponents in both primaries were fair and kind, and I have only the kindest feelings toward them. I congratulate A. B. Holt in having won the race.

OUR FIRST ENTRANCE INTO PALO DURO CANYON

By C. Goodnight as dictated to his foster son, Cleo Hubbard of Goodnight, Texas.

Our first entrance into the Palo Duro Canyon was in November, 1876. We then made our entrance by way of the old Commanche trail between the junction of the Canyon Cito Blanco and the main Palo Duro Canyon. It took us about a half a day to work the cattle down this narrow and ragged trail. We then took the wagon to pieces and carried it down piece by piece on the mules. We had about six months rations and much corn. This was also carried down on the mules. The canyon being narrow at this place prevented any buffaloes from being there. Hence, grass and water were found there in abundance and the cattle ran at their own sweet will. The portage (getting supplies and cattle down in the canyon) was over after two days.

We then started the herd down the canyon. As the canyon widened the buffalo increased 'til finally by the time we arrived at the upper end of the wider valley (which has since been known as the "Old Home Ranch") we supposed we had ahead of us ten thousand buffaloes. Myself, Leigh R. Dyer and an Englishman named Hughes (son of the great Hughes of England) were the buffalo drivers.

Such a sight was probably never seen before and certainly will never be seen again. The red dust arising in clouds, while the tramp of the buffalo made a great noise. The tremendous echo of the canyon, the uprooting and crashing of the scrub cedars made one of the grandest sights that I have ever seen. If the buffaloes did not come down off the mountain sides that were near us, we simply sent a sharpshooter ball among them. A nearby shot would cause an instant stampede, making kindling wood of the small cedars as they came.

These buffaloes were moved down the canyon some fifteen miles, giving ourselves room and grass for our sixteen hundred cattle. There we put on a herd line from the mouth of Turkey Creek and held them back, turning every day from eight hundred to fifteen hundred buffalo. This line was kept up about a year, until the herd was reduced by slaughter, by the buffalo hunters and then the line was not necessary.

At this time there was not an entrance into the canyon, except a few Indian and buffalo trails, for sixty miles; or until opposite the mouth of the Tule, where McKenzie entered with his army to fight the Indians in 1874.

In 1877 it was necessary to bring more supplies from Colorado, and prepare on a larger scale, to start the Adair and Goodnight herd. We left Pueblo with four loaded wagone, with a hundred of the best blooded Durham bulls that I could buy in Colorado. This bull herd caused much amusement and glee amongst their drivers, as to how I was going to raise a herd of cattle from a herd of bulls, knowing I had plenty with the herd below.

With this outfit we left all marks and traces of civilization at what is known as the Cimarron Plaza, on the dry Cimarron River on the east end of the Raton Mountains, in New Mexico, striking south by east until we struck the Canadian River, about forty miles above the present town of Tascosa. From there we crossed over to the upper Palo Duro, coming more south by east, leaving the canyon to the south and right of our course until we were opposite the "Old Home Ranch." The hundred bulls mentioned were put into the canyon out of the way where they would need no herders, and all hands were put to road building, each day building as far as we could, keeping all the outfit within rifle range. The third day we reached the Mesa, which overlooked the entire canyon, the large park below us held some thousand or fifteen hundred buffalo grazing peacefully at sundown.

The night that followed I shall never forget. As you probably know, the volume of sound from a large herd of buffalo is very great. It being mating season, the sound was great indeed with numerous stampedes making it appear to be very close. Mrs. Goodnight, not being accustomed to such scenes, became greatly alarmed saying they would run over the wagon. I utterly failed in convincing her that the herd was miles away. It began to rain, the down-pour was terrific, and the lightning a blaze of light, immense, with thousands of flashes on the wagon sheet. To pacify her, while knowing it would be useless, I got up and made a great fire with dry cedars, assuring her that buffaloes would be easier turned by light than by a calvary regiment.

This was the first road ever made in the Palo Duro Canyon. It would not have been practicable for automobiles. The real road building from top to bottom with its many curves was about four miles, and it remained thus from this time until civilization reached the country.

The first woman who entered the canyon after my wife, were squaws with Quanah's band, when he entered the canyon and a treaty was made with them.

Avalanche Again Alters Niagara's Shape

Niagara Falls submitted to another of Mother Nature's face-lifting operations when a 15,000-ton chunk of rock, undermined by erosion, broke loose from the brink of Horseshoe Falls and dashed into great pieces in the Niagara gorge, piling about the base of the falls. The inset, below, shows a close-up of the great gap left in the brink after the rock had broken off, between Goat Island and the apex of the Horseshoe Falls. Indicated, also, is the location of the great avalanche of 1931, in which 80,000 tons of rock fell, changing the contour of the American Falls.

Frocks That 'Make a Hit' With the Miss

THIS WEEK BRINGS YOU A CHIC APRON DRESS, AND TWO JUMPER ENSEMBLES THAT ARE SPLENDID FOR SCHOOL WEAR

THE young miss will scan this week's offerings eagerly. They include a charming house dress and two pert little jumper frocks that meet youth's demand for chic and individuality.

Red and white gingham makes an appealing fabric for Pattern 166. This attractive apron frock has a reversible closing, is shadow-proof, and opens out flat for ironing. Its just as easy to make as it is to wear.

Designed in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 (with corresponding bust measures of 32, 34, 36 and 38) and also in 40 and 42. Size 18 requires 4¾ yards of 35-inch material, with ⅝ yard for collar and sleeve bands in contrast.

The jumper frock pictured as Pattern 178 just exudes sauciness. It is in peach-colored flannel with blouse of cream crepe, designed for sizes 11 to 19 (bust 29 to 37). Size 15 calls for 3 yards of 35-inch fabric for the dress and 1½ yards for the guimpe. Linen, pique, and crepe are suitable materials.

And now that school days are nigh, what could be more suitable for the young miss starting back to school than the demure jumper frock, Pattern 3508? The fact that it can be worn with different blouses makes it both practical and smart.

Red and white gingham with blouse of white linen, or velvet with a crepe blouse, are suggested combinations. Designed in four sizes: 8, 10, 12, and 14 years, size 12 requires 1¼ yards of 54-inch material for the dress, and 1⅜ yards of 35-inch material for the guimpe. The bow of narrow ribbon requires ¾ yard.

Think . . Talk . . Write TEXAS CENTENNIAL in 1936

"Think . . . Talk . . . Write Texas Centennial in 1936," because it's the hundredth anniversary of a State's march of freedom. The world is watching Texas with wonder at its stupendous undertaking.

The world does not doubt that Texans will make a great success of such endeavor. Texans have never failed.

"Remember the Alamo, Remember Goliad"; remember San Jacinto, remember the great wilderness that was Texas at one time . . . early Texans undertook to make a Nation from a wilderness and they succeeded!

In as short a time as one hundred years the prophecy of Thomas Jefferson, "The Province of Texas will be the richest State in our Union without exception," has become a reality!

Let us dedicate ourselves to the task of carrying it forward. Let us observe, let us challenge the best thought of future generations.

Dr. Hill Chairman Panhandle Group Centennial Plans

The Panhandle section will take an active part in the Texas Centennial which will be celebrated in 1936. A pre-centennial program is being planned for next spring in this section, probably at the Palo Duro State Park, according to announcement made Saturday by District Chairman, C. C. Bishop, of Wellington, who heads the 31st Senatorial District organization.

The committee to have charge of the planning for next year includes Dr. J. A. Hill of Canyon, chairman; Sam M. Braswell of Clarendon; J. D. Hamlin of Farwell; A. C. Johnson of Dalhart; T. E. Johnson of Amarillo; Mrs. John W. Harper of Wellington; Mrs. Phebe K. Warner of Claude.

A meeting will be held of this committee in the near future. Wilbur C. Hawk of Amarillo and L. F. Sheffy of Canyon have been invited to join in this meeting.

It is very likely that the pageant planned for the opening of the Palo Duro State Park will be staged at that time. The large scale upon which the pageant was planned made it impossible for production this year. John Josey of Amarillo has written the pageant, and composed appropriate music to fit into the development of the Panhandle section.

Dr. Hill has conferred with a number of his committee regarding the plans, and by the time of the first meeting several definite plans will have been formulated for this pre-centennial celebration.

Nelson Wins From Bishop for District Judge With 533

Judge Henry S. Bishop was defeated Saturday for re-election as District Judge by Judge E. C. Nelson, the majority being 533 votes in the three counties of the district.

Potter county cast the deciding vote against Judge Bishop, which gave Nelson a lead of 857.

Randall county gave Bishop a lead of 100, and Armstrong county gave Bishop a lead of 234.

Judge Bishop has served this district for nearly 30 years and suffered his second defeat in that time. He was district attorney for several terms before being elected District Judge.

Judge Nelson was County Judge in Floyd county, made an unsuccessful race for County Judge of Potter county, but was later named as Judge of the County Court at Law of Potter County, which office was later abolished.

T. O. M. Carries on for Sir Tom . . . Looks Like Tight Squeeze for Londos . . . Senators Get "Bush" Leaguer

BY PHILIP MARTIN

IF you are one of those trusting souls who believe in spirits, perhaps you can visualize an ethereal being swishing through the air behind T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour in September, blowing a swift breeze into the British yacht's sails in an effort to send it home first in its America's cup race against the U. S. defender.

The specter will be that of old Sir Thomas Lipton, the jovial Irishman who tried so long and unsuccessfully to take the premier yachting trophy back to England. Sir Thomas died sorrowing because his various Shamrock craft couldn't bring home the bacon.

But England has another "Tommy" in Thomas Octave Murdoch Sopwith, who is equally determined to annex the cup. This 46-year-old English sportsman, who amassed a fortune making aircraft, who has been prominent in sports ever since he flew across the English channel in the early days of the airplane, and who won the Harmsworth trophy a couple of times, has spent a lot of English pounds to construct the Endeavour. He has a marvelous craft as a result.

The yacht is constructed entirely of steel, has a mast 168 feet in height, and carries a great mainsail measuring 62 feet along the foot and 140 feet along the luff. With such a spread of sail, the Endeavour is a veritable ocean greyhound, and may surprise the American defender.

The U. S. defending boat, by the way, still is to be decided. The Yankee, Weetamoe, and Rainbow have been engaging in a series of trials on the Atlantic for some weeks and, while the Yankee has had all the best of the elimination races, it isn't certain which of the craft will defend Uncle Sam's laurels.

IF Old Man Time hasn't got a toehold on Strangler Lewis, this grizzled veteran of the mat may don another crown at Chicago's Wrigley Field on Sept. 20. The dope shows that Jim Londos, Greek wrestling phenom and world champ, has succumbed to Lewis' vise-like headlock no fewer than 14 times. But their last meeting was a decade ago; and a lot can happen to a wrestler's prowess in 10 years.

Lewis, 43, is six years older than Jeem. But offsetting this is the fact that no one has ever been able to learn the Strangler's trick of applying his headlock, a hold that still makes the best modern grunters cry uncle.

THE word "Senator," seems a misnomer for most of the athletes on the Washington team. But there's a newcomer, one Allen Benson, whose staid, dignified appearance fits in perfectly with the team name. The reason is that he's bearded, having just been acquired by the Senators from the House of David team. His teammates believe he'll turn out swell if he can just keep that ball from getting tangled in his whiskers.

Another difficult thing for some men to understand who owe big grocery bills is why the grocer always happens to step to the front door just as they stop at the filling station to pay cash for gas.

. . . and That's How I Lay an Egg!'

While you study her innards, this six-foot mechanical hen, on display at the International Veterinaries' convention in New York, cackles, in a precise, feminine voice, the how and why of egg-making. As the manufacture of an egg goes on in her wood and plaster organs, with tiny robot figures helping out, a female voice describes each step in the process.
